

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

BELIEVE 3 STILL LIVE—117 BODIES NOW RECOVERED FROM COLO. MINE.

Hastings, Colo., April 30.—Rescue workers today continued frantic efforts to rescue three men believed still alive 4,000 feet under ground in Victor American mine.

117 bodies have been located by helmet men and 21 of these brought from mine.

The unaccounted for—Thomas Manville, mine worker; Phil King, electrician; and D. H. Reese, mine inspector—are believed safe in an air pocket, barricaded against deadly smoke and gases which filled main shaft after explosion.
